

Pathways Financial Credit Union Receives Generous Socks for Soldiers Donation from Touching Moments

Over the last few weeks, Pathways Financial Credit Union organized and donated to a collection drive for various items that will be sent to US soldiers serving our country overseas via the Socks for Soldiers organization, a Columbus-based, non-profit organization, founded by Kim Opperman. This organization not only collects and delivers personal care items for soldiers, but they also have teams that knit pairs of socks to send with their personal care boxes as well.

A generous donation of personal care items for the Socks for Soldiers Drive was presented to Angela Jackson, Assistant Branch Manager of Pathways from Regina Johnson, President of Touching Moments, a non-profit organization serving underprivileged individuals in Montgomery County. In addition to the substantial donation from touching moments, Pathways Financial Credit Union also donated an additional $4800 in personal care items to the Socks for Soldiers drive.

Alicia Hershberger, Pathways' Director of Sales and Service, stated, "I am sure that Kim Opperman, the President of Socks for Soldiers is going to be extremely excited about the donations not only received today but from everyone in the Pathways family. I appreciate all the hard work our team has put in to make this donation drive successful for our deployed soldiers."
